
mouth. So speak to your life everyday. He gives you a new mouth everyday. He gives you wisdom. Use the wisdom in your mouth and speak to that situation. When the enemy hears you, he will not be able to contradict. Sickness, poverty, fears cannot resist your words. The enemy can resist negative prophecy but not a positive one.

The moment you get out of bed, speak to your day, and things will begin to happen in the spirit. Say, 'This is the day the Lord has made; I will rejoice and be glad in it'. If God has made the day for you, you do not have to see that miracle you have been waiting for first before you rejoice. Faith starts rejoicing before actually seeing the miracle. When you are able to rejoice over the promises of God, He will lead you in the best pathway.

Our House Testimony

Allow me share with you a testimony on the secret of prophesying. In 1999, we started building our first house by faith, but at some point, it stagnated. We prayed but things were not moving. At that time we were staying in the house of a friend who was helping us out because we could not afford rent. It was a blessing but the house was hardly habitable. Secondly, the house was in a lonely place next to a forest. It looked so insecure. And then it happened that my husband had to go on a ministry trip abroad and that meant leaving me and the kids in that house. I did not like the idea at all. I begged my husband not to leave before we moved to our own house, but there was no money to complete construction, and he had no option about going. He had to keep the appointment. So he left.

The moment he left, I determined in my heart that when he returned, he would find us in our house, and I trusted God that it would happen. From then on, every morning, I went to church to pray alone, asking God for wisdom. One morning God gave me Ezekiel 36:1, which says, 'Son of man, prophesy to the mountains and tell them, "Thus says the Lord"'. I understood that the Lord was directing me to go to our incomplete house and begin to prophesy to it. So every morning after my time of prayer at church, I went to the house, and started speaking to it. I commanded the different parts of the incomplete house to listen to thus says the Lord and obey. I spoke to the walls, the roof, etc. I called the cement, timber, and other construction materials to come in. I even called in the perimeter wall.

Within a short time, God began showing me things I could do to earn money. I started vending clothes in offices, and the favor of God was evident. I got customers who paid me well and promptly. With the profits, I bought building materials. In the meantime, I kept on prophesying to the house.
